Jessica Biel announces today's AFI Movie Club selection: EASY RIDER. The film was selected for both AFI's original and 10th Anniversary lists of the greatest American films of all time, and "Born to Be Wild" was recognized by AFI as one of the greatest songs ever featured in a film. EASY RIDER's journey to the big screen included AFI Life Achievement Award recipient Jack Nicholson.

Interesting Facts

Actor/director Dennis Hopper said that the marijuana used in the film was real.

Although the screenplay was written by the stars of the film – Peter Fonda and Dennis Hopper, along with novelist Terry Southern – a great deal of the movie ended up improvised. In this exclusive AFI Archive video, Fonda and Hopper talk about making the film.

In scenes depicting rural and small-town America, real-life farmers and other local, non-professional actors were used.

Director Dennis Hopper had only a week to prepare to shoot scenes at Mardi Gras. This was a result of Peter Fonda getting the date wrong! Rip Torn was initially cast in the role of George Hanson. The part went to Jack Nicholson after director Dennis Hopper and Torn got in a heated dispute before filming.

The first cut of the film by Dennis Hopper, which took him 22 weeks to complete, had a runtime of almost three hours in length. The final film's runtime was 96 minutes.

$1 million was spent to license the music for the film, which was about three times the budget for shooting the film.
