PARK CITY, UTAH â?? The nonprofit Sundance Institute announced today the showcase of new independent work selected across the Feature Film, Short Film, Indie Series, and New Frontier categories for the 2021 Sundance Film Festival. The Festival will take place digitally via a feature-rich, Sundance-built online platform and in-person on Satellite Screens across the country (public health permitting) from January 28-February 3, 2021. Additionally, Festival attendees can gather in virtual waiting rooms, participate in live Q&As, and congregate in new, inspired online environments to interact in a range of ways both new and familiar. The Institute shared details of how the Festival will meet audiences on the online platform and Satellite Screens earlier this month.

The Sundance Film Festival is the flagship public program of Sundance Institute. Throughout the year the majority of the Instituteâ??s resources support independent artists around the world as they make and develop new work through access to Labs, direct grants, fellowships, residencies, and other strategic and tactical interventions.

â??Togetherness has been an animating principle here at the Sundance Institute as weâ??ve worked to reimagine the Festival for 2021 because there is no Sundance without our community,â?• said Sundance Institute Founder and President Robert Redford. â??Under Tabithaâ??s leadership, weâ??ve forged a new collective vision: one that honors the spirit and tradition of these invigorating yearly gatherings in Utah, while making room for imaginative new possibilities in a new online format.â?

â??Of course, the pandemic year demanded adaptation,â?• said Keri Putnam, Sundance Instituteâ??s Executive Director. â??On a deeper level, we also recognize the urgency of supporting independent storytellers at a time of great upheaval in the film and media fields. Weâ??re proud this edition of the Festival is fiercely independent and will reach people everywhere, celebrating both the theatrical experience at our Satellite Screens and streaming on our platform.â?•

â??This Festival is a singular response to a singular year â?? both in design and curation â?? and we are excited about the new dimensions of possibility it will reveal. But at its core is something that speaks to our most enduring values,â?• said Tabitha Jackson, Director of the Sundance Film Festival. â??For thousands of years, humans have gathered to tell stories and make meaning. In this pandemic year, we gather to celebrate a constellation of artists with unique perspectives that express this current moment and who together are saying, â??We exist. This is who we are. And this is what we see.'â?•

â??The work in this yearâ??s program is groundbreaking, imaginative, and formally daring,â?• said Kim Yutani, the Festivalâ??s Director of Programming. â??With over half the program made by first-time directors, a sense of discovery remains true to us at Sundance. This yearâ??s Festival presents irrefutable evidence that despite the challenges, the independent voice is as strong as ever.â?•

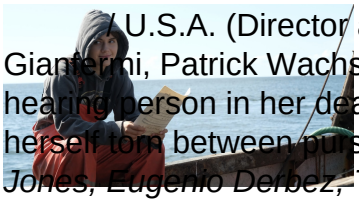

Day One films debuting on the platform to open the Festival will be Censor, CODA, Flee, One for the Road, In The Same Breath, and Summer Of Soul (â?¦Or, When The Revolution Could Not Be Televised).

Son of Monarchs, screening in the NEXT section, has been named the winner of the Alfred P. Sloan Feature Film Prize.

Announced today: the full 2021 slate of works, including 72 feature-length films, representing 29 countries and 38 first-time feature filmmakers. 14 films and projects announced today were supported by Sundance Institute in development, through direct granting or residency Labs. 66 of the Festivalâ??s feature films or 92% of the lineup announced today, will be world premieres. These films were selected from 14,092 submissions including 3,500 feature-length films. Of the feature film submissions, 1,377 were from the U.S., and 2,132 were international. Director demographics are available in an editorâ??s note below.

NEW FRONTIER

Since its launch, the Sundance Film Festivalâ??s New Frontier has served as a showcase for dynamic, innovative work at the crossroads of film, art, and technology. At the Festivalâ??s 2021 edition, a global audience will be able to engage with the works, the artists, and fellow Festivalgoers via a bespoke spatialized platform, developed in partnership with digital experience agency Active Theory and accessible via computer and VR headsets. The New Frontier Gallery hosts the complete slate of live performances, AR, VR, and other emerging media works. Cinema House is the Festivalâ??s social, fully immersive cinema, and Film Party is an interactive bar with 6 screens and more intimate rooms available to the entire community of accredited Festivalgoers so that all can safely gather together, connecting via avatar with proximity audio and video chat.

â??2020 saw that the entire world can shift and leave humanity in an entirely new state of being. As we stand on the precipice of a new era, we need our artists and visionaries to illuminate the way forward,â?• said Shari Frilot, Senior Programmer and New Frontier Chief Curator. â??The lineup of new media works this year challenge what we once knew to be true. Their works glisten with world building wisdom, and offer time machines that extract the cancer of colonial narratives planted deep within our biology.â?•
Frilot added, â??More than ever, we need to gather our community in a meaningful way. This is why New Frontier has built three spatialized digital venues that orbit the earth right alongside the International Space Station. And at any time, Festivalgoers can take leave of the mothership to visit the astronauts aboard the Station, in the immersive experience Space Explorers: The ISS Experience, co-directed by FÃ©lix Lajeunesse and Paul RaphaÃ«l, or spend a night on earth, bar hopping in Amsterdam through IDFA DocLabâ??s do {not} play.

The Sundance Institute New Frontier Program is supported by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, Unity Technologies, Adobe, Dell Technologies, The Walt Disney Studiosâ?? StudioLAB, and Oculus from Facebook.
