

The 74th Golden Globe Nominations Motion Pictures and Television Series

Description

Posted by Larry Gleeson

Bright and early this morning â?? maybe not bright but still early â?? Hollywood Foreign Press Association (HFPA) president Lorenzo Soria introduced Anna Kendrick, Don Cheadle and Laura Dern to announce the 2017 Golden Globe Nominees. La La Land captured seven nominations on the motion picture side including Best Motion Picture â?? Comedy Musical, Best Director for Damian Chazelle and Best Actor â?? Musical Comedy nominations for stars Ryan Gosling and Emma Stone.

Barry Jenkinsâ?? Moonlight was nominated in six categories including Best Motion Picture, Best Director and Screenplay and Supporting Actor noms for Mahershala Ali and Naomie Harris. Kenneth Lonerganâ??s critically acclaimed Manchester By The Sea also made a strong showing with nominations for Best Drama, Director and acting noms for stars Casey Affleck (Best Actor) and Michelle Wiliams (Supporting Actress). Lion, Hacksaw Ridge and Hell or High Water also made the list.

As expected Paul Verhoevenâ??s Elle starring Isabelle Huppert, received a nom in the Foreign Language category. The veteran French actress also received a nomination as one of the yearâ??s best Drama Actresses, alongside Jessica Chastain (Miss Sloane), Ruth Negga (Loving), Amy Adams (Arrival), and Natalie Portman (Jackie). Also receiving a nom for Best Motion Picture â?? Foreign Language was one of my favorite films from the recent American Film Instituteâ??s 2016 AFI FEST presented by Audi, Divines, from the self-taught director Houda Benyamina, starring budding actress, Oulaya Amamra. Other nominees in the Foreign Language category were Neruda from Chileâ??s Pablo Larrain, Asghar Farhadiâ??s The Salesman, and Toni Erdmann from Maren Ade

Television nominations went to Insecure, Atlanta. Black-ish, Mozart in The Jungle, Veep and Transparent and Black-ish which received three nominations. Game of Thrones picked up two nominations and The Crown, Westworld, Stranger Things and This Is Us also receiving noms.

HBO led the way again this year with 14 nominations for its series. The complete list: official_2017_golden_globe_nominations_press_release
