Variety has been given exclusive access to the trailer for â??Quit Staring at my Plate,â?• which plays at the Venice Film Festival in the Venice Days section. World sales are being handled by New Europe Film Sales.

Croatian director Hana Jusicâ??s debut feature centers on Marijana, whose dominant father falls seriously ill and she takes over his role as the head of the family, taking care of her irresponsible mother and mentally disabled older brother. â??The new power constellation allows her to explore her sexuality and her inner strength and gives her a taste of freedom,â?• according to a statement.

The film introduces the actress Mia Petricevic making her screen debut, alongside Zlatko Buric (â??Pusher,â?• 2012).

Produced by Kinoramaâ??s Ankica Juric Tilic (â??The High Sunâ?•), in co-production with Beofilm (â??Teddy Bearâ?•), the film was developed in Torino Film Lab and presented in the 2015 Les Arcs Co-Production Village works in progress section.

New Europe Film Salesâ?? line-up includes â??The Last Familyâ?• (best actor award in Locarno), Toronto-bound â??Zoologyâ?• (Special Jury Prize in Karlovy Vary), â??One Week and a Dayâ?• (55th Cannes Criticsâ?? Week â?? Gan Distribution Prize), â??United States of Loveâ?• (Silver Bear, 66th Berlinale) and 66th Berlinale Panorama Fipresci winner â??Aloys.â?•
